

ABSTRACT

A method of controlling fluid flow (14) in a boundary layer at a fluid-surface interface comprising, providing a plurality of blades (11) which project from the fluid contracting surface into a boundary layer such that in use the blades (11) are orientated to control fluid flow (14) in the boundary layer.